Item 2: Educational Background and Business Experience

Michael L. Marvin, CFP®, received his undergraduate degree from the University of Washington and his Masters from the Johns Hopkins University. He also completed a professional development course in Financial Planning at Georgetown University.

Mr. Marvin served as a Congressional aide, including a stint as Chief of Staff to the late Congressman Silvio Conte of Massachusetts. He was President of the Business Council for Sustainable Energy. In 2003 he founded TAM Financial Advisors, a fee-only financial planning and investment advisory business in Annapolis, Maryland.

Mr. Marvin became a Certified Financial Planner™ practitioner in 2003. The CFP® designation is considered by many to be the preeminent certification in the country, and requires detailed education, experience and ethics qualifications. CFP® practitioners must develop their theoretical and practical planning knowledge by completing a comprehensive course of study at a college or university offering a financial planning curriculum approved by the CFP Board of Standards. Certificants must pass a comprehensive two-day, 10-hour examination that tests their ability to apply financial planning knowledge and in an integrated format, must have three years' minimum experience in the financial planning process, and must abide by a strict code of professional conduct, known as the CFP Board's Code of Ethics and Professional Responsibility. Additional information about this designation can be obtained at <http://www.cfp.net>.
